What's New in the CCProxy?

CCProxy is a powerful application that allows you to share your Internet connection to all the computers connected on the same network. The application creates a proxy server on the computer that is connected to the Internet and distributes the connection to the others. Versatile utility that offers a powerful set of features The program was initially developed to share a modem connection but its functionality has been greatly expanded. Presently, the application supports most of the Internet connection types such as broadband, DSL, dial-up, optical fiber, satellite, and ISDN or DDN connections. There is no problem in sharing these connections even with computers with different operating systems. You can easily configure the proxy services and the protocols that are provided to the other LAN computers. The user can simply check the service and enter the port number for services such as FTP and HTTP. These are settings that are applied to all the computers on the network but you can also customize the access to certain users. Apply Internet access restrictions to specific groups of users The advantage of having a proxy server is to be able to differentiate the services that are available to certain groups of users. This function is very useful when you are dealing with large networks and a limited bandwidth that needs to be allocated to certain groups of users. With this program you can filter the websites that are available to a certain user and restrict access to the Internet within a time interval. Both download and upload bandwidth can be restricted by entering the maximum value. The identification of a certain computer is done by IP address and MAC address. Great tool for business environments You can also share an Internet connection with the default tool from the operating system but the proxy server allows you to better control the distribution of the services among the LAN computers. This might not be necessary within your home but it is a basic requirement in a business environment where the balance between resources and costs is a permanent issue. Whether you need to share your Internet connection at home or at work you can try CCProxy, although it is available for quite some money.
