Search Honeymoon Couple Booked for Airport Pickup There were plenty of things to be done on Friday, so Tiffany, our cat, and I were sent to an empty bay on a large lake. It turned out to be a good exercise and some fish were fun to catch. That evening we returned home to mom and dad and an empty house. We passed the night alone. This was new for us. We rarely sleep alone anymore. The cat, of course, wanted to play, so I went back to the basement and put on a DVD of Disney's "The Princess and the Frog." That was the good news. The bad news was that we were booked for a trip to the airport. I guess we shouldn't have been surprised. It had been at least a month since we decided to get married. We planned the trip because it was time for our own honeymoon, and we wanted it to be special. It certainly was. Friday was supposed to be spent visiting friends and attending a church service, but that schedule had gone out the window. We got to the airport around 3:45 p.m. and waited until about 5:15 p.m. before we picked up. The forecast had called for sunshine and temperatures above freezing, but instead we got the real deal: rain, sleet, and snow! It was a bumpy ride, especially for the cat. We made it to the hotel with minutes to spare. After checking in and settling in, we called home and discovered that mom and dad had already arrived. We went to our room and hopped into the shower. You may be wondering why we didn't call first thing. I guess we were in a rush. We wanted to make a good first impression, to have at least a small layer of warm on us, and we didn't want to miss the shuttle bus. We soon learned that our room was right off the elevator and the hallway was lined with snow. We stepped out into bright light and were greeted by a joyous sound: the squeak of a wheelchair. We froze. It was one of those moments we could have met a neighbor or cousin or an old friend. But it wasn't a neighbor. It was an employee from the hotel with a nurse and a chair. The cat

Q: What to do when you get SPARC64-W while using SPARC64-V? I'm trying to cross-compile a simple C program on a host with SPARC64-V running on an Oracle machine, and I need help figuring out what to do to get the program to actually compile. I've already cross-compiled the C program using CLANG, but I'm trying to compile it as-is using SPARC64-V and GCC. SPARC64-V compiles fine on this host, but it doesn't on the Oracle machine. Whenever I try to compile the C program, I always get SPARC64-W on the compilation line. I've tried compiling it using the --enable-compiler-options=--with-as and --with-gcc options but I always get the same error. I'm not very familiar with the bootstrap process yet, so I'm not sure what to do. I know what bootstrapping is, and what SPARC64-V is doing, just not how to get it to do what I want it to do. Here are the compilation commands I'm using: clang --target=v8 -S -v --disable-sjlj-exceptions --enable-targets=v8 --enable-optimized --cppflags="-I%(opt_dir)s/include -I%(opt_dir)s/include/v8" --linker-option="--v8_link_flags" --libs=v8.a test.c -o test.o When I try to compile it, I get the following error: test.c: In function 'test': test.c:5:18: warning: using 'unused' attribute in structure initializer [-Wunused- structure] struct foo *f; ^ test.c:10:21: warning: using 'unused' attribute in structure initializer [-Wunused- structure] struct foo *f; ^ /home/user/
