Do not copy, sell, modify or distribute this software. This is an updated version of the original tool from Snapfiles Inc, that was available here in the 12.11.2010 for Windows Operating Systems. What are the benefits? The primary purpose of the tool is to help network administrators test the vulnerability of their network devices via the UPnP protocol. The main purpose of this tool is to check out if your network is exposed to attacks or not. You can use it as a proactive measure in order to make sure you sensitive data is not stolen. The advantages of being portable The program comes in a portable package which can be run on your computer with minimal effort. You only need to open the executable file and you are faced with the program's GUI, as there's no setup process to follow. What's more, the tool doesn't leave leftover data in your Windows registry. You can store it on any USB flash drive or other devices and carry it with you. Clean GUI and configuration settings The main window of the program looks very simple and integrates straightforward options. The application gives you the possibility to enter the IP range of the network that you want to scan for UPnP devices. You can provide details about the starting and ending address. In case you want to scan a single machine, you need to enter the same IP address in both fields. Vulnerability scan results and exporting options ScanNow UPnP reveals a scan report that shows the results of the network scan for common vulnerabilities in Universal Plug and Play (UPnP) implementations. The program reveals the identified vulnerabilities in a table, offers detailed information about each one, and displays the date and time, identified and exploitable items, as well as IP range that was scanned.
