How can I select any auto-exposure mode and save it for later? If you change the exposure mode to Spot (or better yet, P, A, or S), you can save that mode for later by pressing and holding down the OK button, then moving the AF/AE-L button to the left. You will see a symbol of a TV or a camera, depending on which camera you were using, appear on the screen. Any idea why the monitor will show black when I tap AF-L to lock? I personally use the TC-20 and I have this same issue. The "line" is there, and it flashes blue. I have tried rolling the shutter back to 6 seconds or so (to when the movement is not as bad) and it helps. I can see it on the monitor, but the camera will capture the same thing. The flashes of white are what are triggering the AF-L to come on. Change the shutter speed and the line disappears and the camera is not showing that the shutter speed is bad. I believe the white lines are part of the high-speed exposure shooting mode. If you press and hold the OK button to lock the AF-L target and start AF-L shooting, you will see a camera symbol. Hello, I am not sure if you have an external monitor. Depending on which camera you own, you 3e33713323
