Cranberry phytochemicals are known to suppress H. pylori, which reduces the risk of stomach cancer. Animal studies support these protective effects, but in vitro studies have not shown consistent results. To date, cranberry's preventive effect in animal models has been unknown. We hypothesized that cranberry phytochemicals can inhibit carcinogenesis by suppressing carcinogens before exposure. Thirty male Fischer 344 rats were fed 0.01% cranberry powder in the drinking water for 12 months. The treatment group consumed cranberry continuously and the control group pulsed cranberry beginning 1 week after carcinogen exposure. At the end of the study, all animals were sacrificed and analyzed for the presence of prostate cancer and stomach pathology. Tumors from 11 animals, representing 5 animals in each of the control and treatment groups, were positive for malignant cells by histopathology. No significant differences were found between the treatment and control groups in the number or size of tumors; the pathological score or tumor incidence between the 2 groups ( $p > 0.05$ ). Results indicate that cranberry supplementation either continuously or pulsed does not prevent oral cancer in male Fischer 344 rats.Q: How to request from within RequestContext to record my job logs in history? I'm working on a code review tool (Ruby on Rails 3.0) with the idea to track user behavior throughout the project. I have difficulties to get the page requests from within the RequestContext since, as far as I understand, RequestContext doesn't provide such a method. So for now, the only way to find out is to add a notice (before every action) and then copy the request logs from the server's access log file (I use `rescue_action_in_public`). As you 3da54e8ca3
