Screenshots: Joint-linked direction of inheritance of height and weight. Pairs of parents and their affected offspring were examined for correlations between offspring phenotypes (height and weight) and also between their joint and their separate distributions. For the general population, only small correlations between these two traits were found for the parents. There was also little evidence for covariance in the parents between the traits of the offspring. When those with a genetic influence on one or both traits were excluded, correlations of 0.2-0.3 were found. For the parents in pairs with discordant offspring, joint correlations were low (0.15-0.2), as were those for separate distributions of the two traits. For the parents in pairs with concordant offspring, correlations were significantly greater, often very high, and in about half the cases the joint distribution was similar to the separate distribution of one trait. It is concluded that when the parents and their offspring are both tall or short, the two traits are not highly correlated and the same is true for weight and height. The high joint correlations observed in many cases involving concordant offspring are not explained by chance. They probably indicate a joint genetic influence on both traits.A year later, one family business has grown and thrived in the wake of Superstorm Sandy This is a story about business survival and renewal in the wake of Hurricane Sandy. The 2012 hurricane took a direct hit on the eastern end of Manasquan Beach, wiping out nearly everything. Robert Seidenberg, who owns Bob's Sand & Gravel, now owns almost double what he did before the storm. "It was a horrible storm," he said. "It was also a blessing." Bob's Sand & Gravel has been a family business for three generations. The original location on North Beach Avenue between Point Pleasant Beach and Jackson was destroyed in the storm, and on Jan. 3, 2013, the family opened its first new location on Hall Avenue in Point Pleasant Beach, which was also hit hard by Sandy. The family business that once operated on North Beach Ave. in Point Pleasant Beach was wiped out by Hurricane Sandy. While the store was open before the storm, there was no electrical power and the family had to leave. When the storm hit, the front door was damaged and everything else went with it. "This was a family business," he said. "We didn't know how to keep the business going." They called a family member who owns a landscaping business in Point Pleasant Beach, and he agreed to help the family salvage their business.
