Mixed mesodermal tumour of the vagina and its dissemination to the lungs. We present the first reported case of mixed mesodermal tumour of the vagina in a 21-year-old woman. This tumour consists of an admixture of malignant epithelial cells, which may be epithelioid or myoepithelioid and myogenic mesenchymal cells. This unusual morphological finding may raise diagnostic challenges, and the immunophenotype is also difficult to interpret. The clinical presentation and radiologic features of the tumour suggested disseminated disease. Autopsy confirmed disseminated disease and revealed a further mixed mesodermal tumour of the cervix, lungs, lymph nodes, and mediastinum. These secondary tumours were found in patients with previous tumours of the vagina. Pathology of the disseminated tumour provided an explanation for the possible clinical similarities between the tumour of the vagina and the metastatic tumours. by an employee who was under probation for alcohol-related conduct." Id. In the case at hand, none of the allegations levied against the Executive Vice President are based on the employment relationship. There is no indication that the alleged conduct was of such an egregious nature as to demonstrate that Montgomery had been discriminated against in retaliation for filing a complaint. Montgomery filed her complaint to redress the alleged racially hostile treatment she experienced at the hands of her subordinates, and the rest is history. V. The plaintiff's final claim is that the defendant has violated the Equal Pay Act of 1963, 29 U.S.C. § 206(d). The Equal Pay Act affords different wage standards to men and women who perform equal work, and Montgomery contends that race is an appropriate employment consideration under this statute. The Equal Pay Act applies to employers who employ at least 100 persons. See 29 U.S.C. § 206(b)(1). The plaintiff, as the chief executive and chief operating officer of the defendant, has four year of college and three years of graduate school
