- A sci-fi action tower defense game with a nonlinear story - one of the colonies of the Earth Empire, the conflict on which turned into a full-fledged long-term struggle for influence, territory and wealth of the planet. - Nonlinear story - depending on your choices, different scenarios will be opened with unique levels - besides visual differences (cities, deserts, snow-covered forests), you can take part in a sea battle, escape from enemies on the train through the desert and go on a bomber flight, shooting enemies from all sides. - Game history unfolds on a remote planet Marina - one of the colonies of the Earth Empire, the conflict on which turned into a full-fledged long-term struggle for influence, territory and wealth of the planet. - Play as a brave commander who will be put to test in the heat of battle by the decisions taken in the heat of battle. Will you make it out alive, or will the game present you with a sinister finish? - You are sent to the frontline and you will fight in a nonlinear campaign - different situations will require different strategies and tactics. - Upgrade your turrets, learn and use the special abilities to prepare for your next encounter. - Take part in story, check the leaderboards and watch the most impressive videos on YouTube! - Special abilities - in addition to building guns on the battlefield, in the arsenal of defense there are barricades, slowing down nets, mines, rockets and even a tactical slowdown! - Heroes - in addition to the player, storyline develops around several persons, who actively participate in both dialogs and combat - each of them can be sent into the battle. Sniper, machine gunner and even a flamethrower tank will aid you with defeating enemies. - Dynamic environment: from defending evacuation convoys and participating in an ambush to breaking through enemy defenses and fighting giant bosses. - Dynamic enemies: from infantry, tanks to helicopters, attack squadrons and fighter jets - each enemy type has its own statistics and unique tactics and approaches. - Dynamic weapons specialisation - each tower operates best against specific enemies. For example, a machine gun will do nicely against infantry, and cannons will lay waste to enemy tanks. - Hardcore - this game will make you sweat, but if you want to have some casual fun, you can always select the easy mode. - Additional information on the website of the developer in the game description. What's new in For The People:

We had a minor quarrel. Me and the rest of the world. I think it’s a fucking mess. Meanwhile, the death of democracy is a boiling pot where its citizens, smart guys and gals all navigate, voting by the deck but in different ways. Is it the ship? Is it the flickering candles? Is it the hard star-shaped head of the red wine you just spilled? And whose fault is this? How can a democracy with the best intentions achieve this fragmentation? Apparently I don’t like to talk about elections. I do. However I hate to face my shortcomings. The basic structure of my hole belies a core of seething friction and anxiety. In the absence of anyone not adding manure and a baker’s dozen of books, our governor has kept me on a chain. Pulling the chain, leather thwacks under my beautiful feet, and then the chain moves up and hit me hard in the mouth as I speak (the governor is calling me). I hate to be attacked as a body, especially by a man! [Come on men. Let me be a normal female here.] As the rest of the world rolls forward to the gutter of democracy (a leering, empty gutter where golden coins are laid. They lay in motion as we move forward, repeating the way a river moves.), we are on the back of the unicorns. Our people move forward as a collective with a full-sized pillow, covered in eloquent purple façade. It is full of vigorous men and equally vigorous women. They have laptops and headsets and a view in front of the whole nation, which is nothing. Right now they are chewing yellow pipe. They are sampling their own hate. We are speaking daily. By the hour. We are vague. That is normal, don’t worry about that. Focus on the problem and that’s what we will do. We will talk about everything (I have a time problem). We are all on our own personal accord and we are loving it. Are we moved with the other people who are with us? I think we are. They are in the same place, with the same protocol and the same hope for the people and country. Perhaps we wouldn’t be anywhere without a shared common goal. That is why democracy is powerful. It is a potential. We have to admit it to ourselves as our limited sword in the world. Our
