Dungeon LeagueIn the field of belt conveyors, there are generally two types of conveyors, or variants thereof; the roll type in which one or more rolls of material are transported on a machine-transported belt, and the driven shaft type where one or more driveshafts are engaged with and driven by a driven shaft to belt complex (collectively the "belt complex"), to transport material on the belt. Belt conveyors are generally well known in the field of conveyors and have been utilized for transporting a variety of materials, including recyclable materials and refuse, wherein such conveyors generally may be wheeled, tracked, or towed to a remote site for recovery of materials therefrom. Driven shaft conveyors are prevalent in the field for transporting and treating scrap metal and are known as "friction wheelers", "friction pushers" and "tumbling drums", among other names

Ōtori Temple (Kagoshima) is a Buddhist temple of the Shingon sect in Iizuka, Kagoshima, Japan. Its honzon is Kōtoku-in of Shingon Buddhism, while its main image is that of Kōtoku-in in the same style. History The temple was established in 1532, and a shrine for the birth of Kōtoku-in is enshrined here, but no image of Kōtoku-in itself. Kōtoku-in was born in 1374 at Nara in Japan, and followed the doctrine of the school. He established Shingon Buddhism in Tōtōmi Province, especially in Ōmi Province, which is near the present location of the temple. The temple was established, according to the Book of Dazaifu, in 1532, but it was transferred from the jurisdiction of the Kōshin-ji temple and established in its present location in 1805. It was dedicated to the Kōtoku-in of Shingon Buddhism. The temple grounds were destroyed by fire on 8 September 1947. Cultural Properties An image of Kōtoku-in is enshrined at the temple, as well as a large stūpa, a Buddhist statue of Gyōki ( ), and a bronze image of the Kōtoku-in of Shingon Buddhism. There are also separate shrines for Kamakau and Chōsen. See also Kōtoku-in External links Ōtori Temple Category:Buddhist temples in Kagoshima Prefecture

What's new in Galaxy Combat Wargames:

Star Trek: Discovery is a science fiction television series developed by The Orville co-creator Seth MacFarlane that serves as a direct continuation of the Star Trek: Discovery television series. The new season premiered on January 16, 2019 on the American television network CBS All Access, and later on the Space Channel and CBS All Access in Canada. The opening themes are "Explorer", "Truth" and "Ad Astra". The series is written by Dry Martini Productions, under executive producer and creator MacFarlane, and composed by Grammy-winning composer Mark Isham. Overview The main setting is the fictional Star Trek Discovery spacefaring U.S.S. Shenzhou, a colony ship from the 24th century, which was launched in the year 2310, containing various critically needed supplies (including an artificial gravity source) for a planet named Eos (named after the natural satellite of Jupiter, and a reference to the Star Trek: The Original Series episode "The Changeling"). The Discovery is sent in the opposite direction to the original Star Trek, as it is on its way back from a journey in the opposite direction from Earth to Alpha Centauri and is accompanied by a large and varied fleet of ships in the Starfleet, led by its captain, Michael Burnham, who, on hearing the words "Enterprise", remarks that she is not the captain of her "real ship". The battle waged between the veteran Starfleet forces from the ship (led by Capt. Georgiou and Lt. Stamets) and the Klingons appears to be over, leaving both parties deadlocked. However, Burnham learns that the Klingons have established a stronghold on Janus VI. She is left alone to fend for herself, aided by a mid-19th century presence of a science team, led by Dr. Culber, and by Kurtwood Smith, who was the first person to embark on the
