The film won four Academy Awards. Star Wars: Episode V: The Empire Strikes Back is the fifth film in the Star Wars franchise, and features the characters played by Alec Guinness, Harrison Ford, Carrie Fisher, Mark Hamill, Peter Cushing, and Wilford Brimley. The film begins with the Rebels from the first film (The Empire Strikes Back) escaping the clutches of Darth Vader and his Galactic Empire. The heroes have the Millennium Falcon and are planning to find the Rebels' location. They are brought to a secret Rebel base on the ice planet Hoth. Vader and a team of Stormtroopers and Imperial troops attack the Rebels. Meanwhile, Han Solo, Chewbacca, Princess Leia, and C-3PO have been captured, and are taken to Darth Vader in his Death Star as bounty hunters. Darth Vader tortures Solo, but is forced to release the Rebel heroes. Leia asks Vader to release Han, but he refuses. He then announces that the Rebels will be destroyed, and he will capture Han Solo himself. Vader then says to Leia, "An alliance this weak is not worth the name of Republic." Leia is enraged. The Rebels launch an attack against the Death Star. The Rebels claim to have found a weakness in the Death Star, but he refives to look for the Rebels. The Imperial fleet arrives, and Han and Leia hide in the cave where Han helped Princess Leia's father, Anakin Skywalker, when e79caf774b
