Q: Prove that $x^2 - y^2 = z^2$ is dense in \mathbb{R}^3 . I'm trying to prove that $x^2 - y^2 = z^2$ is dense in \mathbb{R}^3 . Any idea on how to go about this? A: Consider the field of solutions F of $x^2 - y^2 = z^2$, i.e. the set of all (a, b, c) satisfying the equation. This is the set of points on the circle $x^2 + y^2 = z^2$. It is not hard to see that this is a line, the line at infinity, and it has a parallel as its unique line at infinity. Then the line at infinity meets F at infinitely many points, so F is dense. A: Consider the vector $(1, 0, 0)$. Take (a, b, c) with $|a| \leq 1$, $|b| \leq 1$, $|c| \leq 1$. Then $|a| \leq |a+b|$, $|a+b| \leq |a+b+c|$ implies $|a+b+c| \leq |a+b| + |a| + |b| + |c| \leq 3$. Thus (a, b, c) lies in an infinite closed disk, and is dense in it. Preparing the Army for Urban Combat The U.S. Army is in the midst of a major shift. A cadre of experts and experts-in-training are studying the issues of urban warfare in order to make the Army better at countering that warfare. This series of articles will highlight those experts and experts-in-training, and attempt to understand what the Army needs to do to improve its readiness. In December, United States Army Europe's Chief of Staff of the Army Gen. Mark A. Milley gave a presentation to the Institute of Land Warfare in which he discussed the "Big Problems" of the Army. His talk centered on the dangers faced by U.S. forces in the near future and included the "Big Problems"

14" Over/Under 1.25 Toms FREE SHIPPING $69.99 $44.00 Looking for a classic that will work for both tournament and casual play? This Stellar Island 12 gauge is one of the most popular models out there. Made of American walnut in a black composite stock, this gun is full of features and will provide many years of game shooting excellence. The 14" barrel is chromed for a durable finish, and the stock is notched for comfort and improved grip. The grip also has an integral trigger guard for ease in loading and unloading shells. Coming equipped with an optional gear box that provides not only easier triggering but also reduces the amount of handloads needed to develop tight groups at 25 yard distances. This 22 caliber is also equipped with an oversized chamber to allow it to handle both high and low pressure hunting shells. However, the most unique feature of the model is the island percussion cap that is much longer than other commercially available patterns and will even come equipped with its own sling swivel. Like any Starry Field gun made by T&G, this 14" with its ratchet breech is the perfect gun for a tournament grade setup, as no gunsmithing is required to convert it to a double set-up. Great for taking smaller game birds down to the range or target practice, this gun makes a statement with the small bullseye target in the center of its stock, especially when the larger targets show their full beauty. While you can purchase a Starry Field gun, you can also build your own masterpiece with a variety of internal options. This is where you can have much more control over the performance of your gun, adding features like top tang forward peep sights, a full complement of shooting and hunting accessories, a stock that comes in a variety of colors and finishes, and of course, a hammer. While most models are built with stock rubbers that vary from length to length and even with and without a straight spur, this one is the only one we have ever seen with a trigger bar and a flat spur. That is because it is the only design that allows us to make the model exactly as the gun "draws," as there is never a need to measure the barrel and set the gun up on an open
