Hi I have a TableView and each cell has a UIButton which I want the title of the button to be custom so that the different cell has a different text. At the moment I have text of the button and I have a function setup to setup the title of the button. This creates a different text when the device rotates. The problem is that I want the button to still say the same text no matter what. Currently I have this: self.cardViewCell = [[UITableViewCell alloc] initWithStyle:UITableViewCellStyleDefault reuseIdentifier:@"cardViewCell"]; [self.cardViewCell.contentView addSubview:self.cardView]; self.btnCardTap = [UIButton buttonWithTypeCustom]; [self.btnCardTap setTag:self.indexPath.row]; [self.btnCardTap.titleLabel setText:self.data[(NSInteger)row].cardName]; self.btnCardTap.frame = CGRectMake(7, 20, 30, 30); [self.btnCardTap addTarget:self action:@selector(tapCard:) forControlEvents:UIControlEventTouchUpInside]; [self.btnCardTap setBackgroundColor:[UIColor clearColor]]; [self.btnCardTap.titleLabel setTextColor:[UIColor whiteColor]]; [self.btnCardTap.titleLabel setFont:[UIFont fontWithName:@"HelveticaNeue-Light" size:11.0]]; How can I change the title of the button or make it so that the buttons text remains the same, even after rotating the device? A: The text will stay constant with the following implementation. - (UITableViewCell *)tableView:(UITableView *)tableView cellForRowAtIndexPath:(NSIndexPath *)indexPath

When Winston first introduced their premium rod series in 2003 they gave their rods.Go fish, killer whales, osprey, big horn sheep, odocoileus virginianus, and other wild animals that have eluded detection until now need to update their marketing plans. Their evolutionary lags have made them out-of-date, as some fisheries have closed to them. If we apply the standard of looking at five or 10 years ahead in time, most of these animals are already extinct in America because we have reached the maximum level of exploitation. We have already exhausted them in the fishing, hunting, and trapping industries. The good news is, as a practical matter, most of these animals will survive in the world as they never have before, and they will be able to work together to restore a world that needs all the animals in the world. You can count on it. We are in a crisis that has gone unnoticed because of high-tech theater. The political system has largely forgotten that we once had such a high level of animal abundance and diversity in America. We now have a world where the oceans, rivers, streams, and lakes are no longer full of fish and we've nearly cleaned out the lands and forests and are now at the point of extinction of most of the animals that have eluded our destruction. It's not a game of Red Rover. It's just the way it is. What Will Happen? Seeking more animals that have eluded detection by state and federal agencies, and that lack on the best selling seafood lists, I have a list of animals that I consider very important that we should be looking for, but that are most likely almost wiped out in this country as it stands today. There is a clear trend of government agencies no longer looking at the diversity of animals as important. These animals have been effectively driven into small areas and then exterminated. They have been overfished or overharvested. The majority of these animals will never be seen again in the world as we know it. The way the system works in the United States is that each agency targets its own area. And if you've never heard of one fish or wildlife agency and another, you've got nothing to fear. They are all working in tandem on things that they need to fix on a day-to-day basis. The Species that Are Already Extinct We are
