The fifth year of the ongoing partial government shutdown was a "record-setter" for congressional travel, according to an analysis of travel data by the Washington Examiner. Nearly half of all House members (48 percent) from the 435 total lawmakers who went on a trip during the shutdown traveled via government-owned aircraft, the report said. The previous high was 45 percent in 2013, when then-Speaker John Boehner used Air Force One to travel to a Winter Meetings in Florida. The shutdown began Dec. 22, 2018, and is now the longest on record. The tally included five congressional trips, three presidential trips, and 112 congressional on-the-ground trips. The Washington Examiner tallied more than two dozen of these trips and expenses that some lawmakers were required to cover, including seven members of the House Judiciary Committee. "Even with new records set this year, congressional travel shutdowns for lawmakers haven't been worth the cost to taxpayers, which has amounted to hundreds of millions of dollars, far more than what it would have cost to maintain a skeleton staff and keep offices open," the report said. The extensive congressional travel during the shutdown was on top of millions of dollars in on-the-ground expenses that lawmakers have covered over the years, the report said.

System Requirements:

For the purposes of this listing, the term "windows" applies to both Windows XP, Vista, Windows 7, Windows 8 and Windows 10. So, in theory, this game should work on any Windows based computer, but since not every system has the same amount of RAM or Processor power, the listing below is actually more of a guideline than a guarantee that this game will run on your computer. The minimum system requirement is a dual core processor, 2GB RAM and DirectX 9.0c. As a general rule, if your computer meets these requirements,
