Sequence-specific DNA cleavage of the p16 gene in mammalian cells: the identification of two in vitro DNA-protein complexes. A sequence-specific DNA cleavage assay for the detection of in vivo sequence-specific DNA-protein interactions in mammalian cells has been developed. Using this assay, we have identified two in vitro DNA-protein complexes that bind to the p16/INK4 gene promoter. Complex A is the product of the interaction of cellular proteins with a 1.2 kb fragment of the intron 1 of the p16 gene. Complex B results from the interaction of cellular proteins with a 1.4 kb fragment of the p16 promoter, which contains multiple E-boxes. Both complexes have the sequence-specificity required for the initiation of p16 gene transcription, suggesting that the identified in vivo DNA-protein interactions could be involved in the regulation of p16 gene expression.
