May 2018 Last Friday we were joined by Pam Dillon again. Pam is a native of the Delaware Valley and fell in love with the area when she spent time at the Chestnut Hill bookstore. She has lived in California for the last eight years but returned to Chestnut Hill to live on her own. She loves the events, people and bookstores at Chestnut Hill! Pam loves children's book writing, but in recent years she has switched to writing her love story, "Wayward Hearts," with its follow-up book, "Making Their Way." We love that she's not resting on her laurels - she has a new children's book project in the works. Pam's book, "The Enchanted Traveler: A Monk's Story," is based on the true story of the travels of the Buddhist monk Brother Anuruddha to India. Brother Anuruddha is a swami - a holy man who wears the saffron robes. Brother Anuruddha and his companion had left Burma for India when he saw an old man in a forest, and the old man told him to follow him. Brother Anuruddha eventually found himself at the head of a large herd of goats. He was struck by a desire to travel with his goats. He would return to Burma after he had visited all the lands of the world. He believed that these lands were holy, but he did not know the names of the places he visited. Pam Dillon's sixth children's book, "Brother Anuruddha and the Lost Lands of the World," is about his journey to find the real names of the lands of the world. It is a wonderful story that illuminates the lands of the world, and is meant for children who are interested in reading about imaginary places.

1. How did you come to the Chestnut Hill Bookstore? I have been coming to this store for many years. When I first
