1. beezzy23 05-14-2017, 11:09 PM hello everyone i have a set of jeans (brownish) that have a crackling sound during compression (with the button, cuffs etc) when i put them in the dryer. the noise from the crackling is loud enough for me to hear from outside the room. i cleaned the rest of the jeans with a clothing refresher and d-tol and they are fine. they have never had any issues before. the crackling is still heard but not as bad as when i clean them. i suspect it's from the hand cleaner. i have a set of jeans (brownish) that have a crackling sound during compression (with the button, cuffs etc) when i put them in the dryer. the noise from the crackling is loud enough for me to hear from outside the room. i cleaned the rest of the jeans with a clothing refresher and d-tol and they are fine. they have never had any issues before. the crackling is still heard but not as bad as when i clean them. i suspect it's from the hand cleaner. have you checked the length of the crackles with a thin sharp object? or the fabric quality? try with new or another brand that you can be sure is the same quality as the ones that have this problem. Horrible greasy dryer sheet is the major cause of a big problem which is "Dryer Sheet Carbon" and "Dryer Note". After you wash your clothes, you are adding them in the dryer. Dryer sheet promotes bacteria growth which in turn is the primary cause of carbon and dryer note. These dryer sheets have a flaking property that attracts grease and accelerates dryer carbon. If you are using a cheap dryer sheet, you are coating your machine with grease. A cheap dryer sheet will create this problem in your machine. I have tried washing and drying garments over and over again until I was assured that the clothing was soiled from all sources. Now if it is in the wash or dryer, I condition the clothing immediately and use the appropriate care products for both wash and rinse. This helps to keep the clothing soft and washable. Have you read through the checklist to prevent the problem from happening again? There are steps like repairing and cleaning your dryer, testing your was
