with .Q: linq: splitting a list by the first letter of each item Sorry to post here, but I couldn't find another similar question in SO. Assuming I have a list of strings that looks like this: a = "what happened" b = "to me" c = "what's up" d = "?" e = "?" What I want to do is to sort the list, after that I want to split each string into the list of words by the first letter of each item. So my result should look like this: a = "what" b = "to" c = "what's up" d = "?" e = "?" Any ideas? A: You can do this with an anonymous type: var a = "what happened", b = "to me", c = "what's up", d = "?", e = "?"; var result = from s in a.Split(' ') select new {s.Substring(0,1), s}; If you use var, you can still type the result using a new { } anonymous type. A: foreach(string s in myList) { var ss = s.Split(' ').ToList(); // Do something with the value of ss } A: Your best bet would be to use the "Concat" extension method provided by Linq on String class. Something like this: myList.Concat(myList.Where( item => item
