at the time of the writing of this statement the metastock access online form is undergoing an update that has caused a few customers to lose access to their reports. unfortunately this may cause a delay in any reports that are submitted via that form. the update of the form should be in full swing later today. using metastock's unique 'pivot table' functionality, an analyst's pivot table can be split up into 3 separate pivot tables: the first pivot table contains the chart(s) for the current stock, the second pivot table contains the chart(s) for the stock's industry average, and the third pivot table contains the chart(s) for the stock's recent trend. the shutdown of the web feed for datalink is only temporary, and will be replaced with real reuters data as soon as possible. until that time, users will be unable to access or manipulate reuters datalink data in metastock. as reuters data is based on the same data as the previous version, reuters users will be able to continue to work with their data. algorithmic traders aren't the types of traders who would buy and sell securities directly, a brokerage firm said in its first earnings report from its new "automated" trading platform, reuters reported. the first report from the new platform was published on thursday after a five-day trial, according to the firm, which would not name the institution. the latest iteration of trading software from metastock, formerly called metatrader, was unveiled in september, though the data feed used to create charts within the app was released on wednesday. the mt5 data feed allows users to get all their financial data from online services like reuters at the click of a button.
