Hydrocarbons, such as oil and gas, are recovered from a subterranean formation by drilling a well that penetrates the hydrocarbon-bearing formation. In some instances, a drilling rig and a well site work site are located in an open field. In other instances, a well site may be located within a structure, such as a building or a pipeline. In some instances, the well site may have a drilling rig that is located within a structure, such as a building or a pipeline. During the drilling operation, a drill bit is rotated to cut the formation. Once the drill bit has formed a borehole, sections of a casing may be placed in the borehole. The casing sections may be hung from the drilling rig. After a desired length of casing has been placed, the casing may be cemented into the wellbore. The wellbore may then be completed to have one or more production zones. During production operations, the casing may be perforated or otherwise opened to allow hydrocarbons to flow into the wellbore. This may be accomplished, for example, by shooting perforation tools through the casing.Q: Sort a numpy array by array column and change sign for negative values I have a np.array, lets call it data, with values [6, 9, 3, 2, 4, 8]. I want to sort this array by a second np.array called size. I want to sort data based on its columnt by size. For example, the first 3 numbers should be sorted by size in the order [3, 2, 6] and so on for the rest of the array.
