NetDrives Crack + Free [Mac/Win]

NetDrives is a nice and effective file sharing utility that is more than capable of sharing entire drives on a network. Since all drives are accessible by other computers, it will be able to do its job for you in no time at all. Not free, but definitely worth the price. Highly recommended. NetDrives Screenshots: Have you ever experienced file sharing within a local network, or even without the Internet? If yes, then you can probably already handle sharing entire drives. This could be done through several methods, including floppy drives or other programs, but that's where NetDrives comes in. With this easy-to-use application, you don't need to be a computer genius to share files with other computers. All you need is a PC and one or more network devices (usually a router or a switch), and you are good to go. Of course, you need an account to make things work, but otherwise, it's pretty much as simple as it can get. The application comes with a pretty straightforward and visual interface that makes doing the job a walk in the park. Once the account has been set up, it's all about making connections, and uploading and downloading shared files. NetDrives has a dedicated tool that allows you to connect or disconnect computers from the application. This can be done quickly, or if needed, there's also the possibility to automatically connect computers to the application after a certain time. There's also the option to make connections stay hidden in the system tray, while letting you connect them using the dedicated button. Besides this, history is kept track of just in case something goes wrong. You can even remove computers from the system tray and leave it for the next connection attempt. For a description of everything available, check out the help menu. There are also some additional features to let you work with computers both on the local network, and on a remote network. NetDrives Requirements:

Before you continue with the installation process, make sure that the .NET Framework version is installed on the computer you want to run the application on. If it isn't already installed, install it through the "Add/Remove Programs" function. Next, you need to connect to the computer running NetDrives, and you need to be its administrator to do so. Once this is done, you need to go through the process of signing in to NetDri
