Modern software improved compatibility with network drivers and many more new features including the ability to perform.(CNN) -- A woman accidentally drove off a downtown runway in California, scraping it with her plane's wings and then crashing into a Burger King's drive-thru on Saturday, police said. The unidentified woman was hospitalized after the crash. No other people were injured in the accident, said Officer Tim Curran with the LAPD. The aircraft was also damaged. Police received a report shortly before 11 a.m. that a small, single-engine plane had landed on the runway outside the H&I Hardware store at 12526 Hoover Street in Los Angeles, Curran said. "The plane started driving off the roadway and driving back and forth, up and down on the runway" as the craft went from the northbound to the southbound lanes, Curran said. The woman driving the plane inadvertently ended up hitting the highway onramp, Curran said. The aircraft then flew into the Burger King parking lot, Curran said. "The plane came to a rest at
